To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write this letter for John Brooks, whom I strongly recommend. I taught him in my Software Test & Quality Assurance class and Project and Portfolio. Throughout the courses, I was impressed by his professionalism, dedication and intelligence. He always displayed exceptional skills as a software developer, I have no doubts that he will continue to excel in the position for which he applies.

Mr. Brook's performance in both classes was exceptional. The Software Test & Quality Assurance class required a great amount of knowledge in programming logic and object-oriented programming (OOP) that many students struggle to grasp. However, Mr. Brooks not only grasped and comprehended this knowledge quickly, he often exceeded the normal expectations. For example, he would always complete more labs than required throughout the course, without compromising on quality. His completed tasks have reflected his intellectual sophistication and outstanding work ethic and he would frequently chat with me after class about tech related topics. It was obvious that he was passionate and eager to contribute in this industry. I really enjoyed having him in classroom discussions as well because he would always bring creative and insightful comments on different subjects.

I am also extremely impressed by Mr. Brooks' dedication and amount of effort he put into his project after classroom hours, it was evident in the project he completed in the end for Project and Portfolio. I assigned a basic and straight forward programming project to students in this class, and Mr. Brooks not only completed this project in time, but he made a more advanced and efficient version of it when no other students did. This demonstrated his exceptional intellectual abilities, passion, and determination in striving for excellence. I have taught many students in Full Sail University in the past years and very few have impressed me with such traits and abilities.

Mr. Brooks strives to become a software developer after he graduates, I have no doubt that he will work exceptionally hard, excel and continue to use his knowledge to improve the company he works for as an individual or within a group. I am certain you will be impressed by his work as well. Please contact me if you have any additional questions about Mr. Brooks, I will be more than happy to elaborate.

Sincerely,

Charles Rainey Course Director Full Sail University
